

Research Assistant Position: Social and Emotional Development in Elementary School

Lab: Stanford Project on Adaptation and Resilience in Kids (SPARK)

Website: <https://web.stanford.edu/group/sparklab/>

Dr. Jelena Obradović is seeking to hire research assistants (for pay or course credit) to help with the data collection for a study of social and emotional learning skills in second and third graders.

Time commitment: Data collection will take place at schools in East Palo Alto and Redwood City Monday through Thursday from 3–6 PM throughout October and in early November. Candidates who are available at least one day per week (for 5 weeks) should apply.

Qualifications: We are seeking applicants who are reliable and interested in developmental psychology or education. Prior experience working with children and access to a car is a plus.
